Direct from the West End
the WORLD PREMIERE of GRAEME OF THRONES
as NOT seen on TV...

"A must for any GOT fan" Time Out

After a sold-out, critically acclaimed West End season, Graeme of Thrones is setting out on a 35-date UK tour from Friday 22 April - Thursday 16 June.

Graeme of Thrones takes a unique and fun theatrical journey through the Seven Kingdoms with avid Game of Thrones super fan Graeme and cohorts, ex-crush Briony and best friend Paul, as they attempt to impress a producer and show the world how everyone's favourite swearsy fantasy TV series should have been made! Featuring a family tree wider than The Wall, as many grisly deaths as there are characters and some appropriately missing dragons, it's a rollercoaster ride of beheadings, incest and war.

Created by a team of some of the UK's top comedy writers, Graeme of Thrones is a wacky and wicked take on the international phenomenon that is Game Of Thrones. See it before the inevitable lawsuit!

Writer and BAFTA winner Jon Brittain said: "Graeme of Thrones is a parody/farce/show-within-a-show/loving-homage. It's nice to be in a room where being an anally retentive fanboy is actually a good thing! The writing team had a lovely time geeking out and discussing how ridiculous Ser Jorah and Littlefinger's voices are, how Daenerys really should have double checked there was a no-nudity clause in her contract, and how Jon Snow really is incredibly boring (but so pretty!)."

Graeme of Thrones stars Ali Brice (creator of Fringe sensation Eric Meat) as Graeme, Libby Northedge (part of award-winning duo Twisted Loaf) as Bryony and Mark Davison (part of internet sketch trio The Exploding Heads) as Paul.

Graeme of Thrones is directed by Sam Bailey (co-founder of Parrot In The Tank Theatre) and written by Toby Park (Artistic Director of Spymonkey), Andrew Doyle (writer of the musical adaptation of Terry Pratchett's Soul Music) and Dan Evans (Thanks a Lot Milton Jones, Mock The Week, Live at the Apollo). The script consultant is John Brittain (creator of Edinburgh Fringe hit Margaret Thatcher, Queen Of Soho, and a Fosters Comedy Award winning director).

Video Design is by Gareth Risdale, who is also Production Manager.

It is produced by Alex Jarrett.

CRITICS CHOICE

THE  TIMES

 METRO

EveningStandard. The West Australian

PRESS QUOTES

“Stupidly enjoyable... their comic timing is superb”

The Stage

“An especially over-the-top celebration of bad taste”

Chortle

“A roller coaster ride of beheadings, incest and war”

The West Australian

“Game Of Thrones fan boys and girls will want to get tickets... magic on stage”

The Urban List

PRESS QUOTES

“Funny, with spot-on gags and lo-fi props that wring so much silliness from George RR Martin’s fantasy adventure... you’ll see the main characters deftly, daftly reimaged. There’s nudity (sort of), dragons (sort of) versions of Joffrey, Ned, Daenerys and Tyrion that get to the nub of their flaws. These are writers and performers who live on the more inventive edge of the comedy scene... they deserve to be cherished.”

The Times

“Expect tears of laughter!”

Gay Times

“There aren’t many shows that once you’ve finished watching, you go straight to the box office to buy tickets to see it again. But Graeme of Thrones is one such show. With a sharp script and ingenious parodies, Graeme of Thrones is an absolute must-see for fans of the books and TV series.”

West End Wilma

“An affectionate tribute to Game of Thrones, performed with expert timing and plenty of gusto. An endearingly entertaining romp.”

CAST BLOGS

Ali Brice – Graeme

Ali Brice is a character comedian. Performing since 2009, he creates completely nonsensical, vividly-coloured worlds full of very silly, larger-than-life characters. Eric Meat is always at the heart of these worlds. A retired teacher from Humber-side, Eric is a happy-go-lucky naïve dreamer of a man. Innocent and unaware, his world is small and he is obsessed with the mundane and always looking for love. In 2014 Brice took Eric Meat Wants to Go Shopping to the Edinburgh Fringe to critical acclaim, earning 4 stars from Chortle ('Joyously bonkers ... the perfect level of exaggerated oddness without tipping into the self-indulgent'). He returned the Fringe in 2015 with Eric Meat Has No Proof, Only Memories of Pasta and performed once again to sell-out crowds. Brice has had a life-long love of comedy and his heroes include Vic and Bob, Harry Hill, Spike Milligan and The Mighty Boosh. He is a member of the London-based alternative comedy collective Weirdos.

Libby Northedge – Bryony

Libby Northedge is an actor, improviser, writer and award winning comedian. One half of comedy duo Twisted Loaf, she has honed a darkly comic and highly physical style. Twisted Loaf won the prestigious Funny Women Award 2013 and have taken two hit shows to The Edinburgh Fringe Festival which have both transferred to Soho Theatre, London. She recently co-wrote and performing in a short film for SKY 1.

Mark Davison – Paul

Mark Davison's TV credits include Top Coppers (BBC3), Drifters (E4), Chewing Gum (E4), Drunk Histories (Comedy Central), Cuckoo (BBC3), Cradle To Grave (BBC2) and Toast of London (C4). He is one third of internet sketch trio The Exploding Heads, who are behind the weekly ESPN football comedy show How Will They Line Up? (Mark plays Ian Fiveankles). As a stand up comedian he regularly performs as his character Mr Susie, a hopelessly confused alien.
